To help our customers making successful claims of aid and incentives for economic development, we have established a global service line of government assistance and incentives for "R&D and Government Incentives". We have extensive global experience in all aspects of the application of incentive strategy, preparation of technical reports and justification of aid, with more than 600 professionals, including many former regulators, in more than 50 countries. Many countries, including Spain, offer generous grants, R&D tax credits and R&D incentives in areas such as energy efficiency, new materials, environment, globalisation, innovation, sustainability and training.

Our "R&D and Government Incentives" practice is specialized in the following areas:

- Research and development claims preparation.
- Government incentives application support.
- Tax controversy related to R&D or government incentives.

- Intellectual property tax management.
