Description

EnviroComms are an accomplished, and highly effective Government, Public Affairs and Behavioural Change Communications Experts with over 25 years of experience leading Communications, Stakeholder Engagement, Community Relations, Lobbying, and Operations, working exclusively within the Waste and Resource Recovery sector both in the UK and Internationally. We deliver superb communications skills, fostering trusting and long-lasting relations with governmental agencies, NGO groups, media, lobbyists, clients, and communities. Our combination of creative and strategic communication skills and effective behavioural change expertise has helped to positively support infrastructure developments, critically inform service specification for new waste and recycling services and saved local authorities millions of pounds in additional diverted waste. Through EnviroComms, you have access to some of the world's leading experts in fields relevant to the services you seek. We believe this approach offers you a uniquely focused and highly effective team that will deliver the outcomes you desire.
